MONTHLY ROUND UP FROM THE PROVINCE

R.E.Kt. Dean Robert White - The Provincial Prior

Dear Brother Knights,

Brother Knights, it has been a very busy April with ceremonies taking part in all 4 corners of the Province. It was very heartwarming to see just shy of 60 Knights at Outremer.

May continues to be busy with the trip to Great Priory undoubtedly the highlight of the Month. We have a Malta ceremony to look forward to at the end of May at Leslie Felgate Dring. I encourage all new Knights to complete this part of your journey.

As always, I look forward to seeing many of you on my travels around the Preceptories.

Yours in the Bonds of the Order

The Siege of Malta – a History part two

(Source Wikipedia)

The Great Siege of Malta (Maltese: L-Assedju l-Kbir) occurred in 1565 when the Ottoman Empire attempted to conquer the island of Malta, then held by the Knights Hospitaller. The siege lasted nearly four months, from 18 May to 8 September 1565.

The Knights Hospitaller had been headquartered in Malta since 1530, after being driven out of Rhodes, also by the Ottomans, in 1522, following the siege of Rhodes. The Ottomans first attempted to take Malta in 1551 but failed. In 1565, Suleiman the Magnificent, the Ottoman Sultan, made a second attempt to take Malta. The Knights, who numbered around 500 together with approximately 6,000 footsoldiers, withstood the siege and repelled the invaders.

This victory became one of the most celebrated events of sixteenth-century Europe, to the point that Voltaire said: "Nothing is better known than the siege of Malta." It undoubtedly contributed to the eventual erosion of the European perception of Ottoman invincibility, although the Mediterranean continued to be contested between Christian coalitions and the Muslim Turks for many years.

Arrival of the Ottomans

Before the Turks arrived, de Valette ordered the harvesting of all the crops, including unripened grain, to deprive the enemy of any local food supplies. Furthermore, the Knights poisoned all wells with bitter herbs and dead animals.

The Turkish armada arrived at dawn on Friday, 18 May, but did not at once make land.[21] The first fighting broke out on 19 May. A day later, the Ottoman fleet sailed up the southern coast of the island, turned around and finally anchored at Marsaxlokk (Marsa Sirocco) Bay, nearly 10 kilometres (6.2 miles) from the Grand Harbour region. According to most accounts, in particular Balbi's, a dispute arose between the leader of the land forces, the 4th Vizier serdar Kızılahmedli Mustafa Pasha, and the supreme naval commander, Piyale Pasha, about where to anchor the fleet. Piyale wished to shelter it at Marsamxett Harbour, just north of the Grand Harbour, in order to avoid the sirocco and be nearer the action, but Mustafa disagreed, because to anchor the fleet there would require first reducing Fort St. Elmo, which guarded the entrance to the harbour. Mustafa intended, according to these accounts, to attack the poorly defended former capital Mdina, which stood in the centre of the island, then attack Forts St. Angelo and Michael by land. If so, an attack on Fort St. Elmo would have been entirely unnecessary. Nevertheless, Mustafa relented, apparently believing only a few days would be necessary to destroy St. Elmo. After the Turks were able to emplace their guns, at the end of May they commenced a bombardment

BROTHER KNIGHTS: OUR JOURNEY SO FAR...

By Kt. Sunny Sagoo

In the summer of 2024, my elder brother Ranj and I were en route to the Beaconsfield Masonic Centre for a Lodge of Instruction. We happened to be discussing the historical and Masonic Knights Templars. Upon arrival, we met and greeted the Beaconsfield Centre Steward, W.Bro. Nick Holden, a truly wonderful brother, in centers' bar. There, we bumped into another wonderful Nick! – W.Bro., and in fact also Kt., Nicholas Wilson. He and a few other brethren were awaiting the call to their Festive Board. His red-colored cross lapel pin caught my eye, which Nick explained represented the Knights Templars. Ranj and I were just talking about them 10 minutes earlier! This led to an intriguing conversation about KT. It concluded with Nick keenly saying he'll put us in touch with E.Kt. Graham Snell, the Registrar of the Cygnet Preceptory, No. 464, which meets at the Centre. In short order, an informal interview and presentation was arranged for us, which was truly illuminating!

Ranj and I found ourselves scheduled for a double Installation ceremony on Friday 14th February 2025. I promptly acquired two KT kits from Crest Regalia. I was slightly concerned that attendance might be low due to the ceremony falling on Valentine's Day, but to my surprise and delight, there was a significant turnout, featuring brother knights Malcolm Woolgar, Victor Bickers, Nick Wilson, Graham Snell, Jeff Sirrell, David Harfield, Mark Kentfield, Danny Peacock, among many others!

BROTHER KNIGHTS: OUR JOURNEY SO FAR...

Continued.....

Our Installation ceremony was an extraordinary and unforgettable experience, surpassing all our expectations. My brother and I were absolutely captivated by the religious and martial essence of the Order. Moreover, this ceremony wasn't just a double, but a double-double! The second double took place immediately after ours, in which E.Kt. Graham Snell even granted us the honour of participating in the Installation of the two new candidates, Companions Dave May and Graham Turnball. Ranj was appointed as First Herald, while I had the honour of serving as a Standard Bearer. A fascinating experience, thankfully delivered without a hiccup!

The ceremony was followed by a fantastic Festive Board. E.Kt. Graham Snell did a truly superb job beautifully arranging the tables and adorning them with St. George's Cross tablecloths, real candles, and even some armour on a central table. During the delectable meal, Ranj and I got further acquainted with several wonderful brother knights.

It may be interesting to mention, Ranj and I were brought up in the Sikh faith, and in our exploration of books and novels related to the Knights Templars and Freemasonry, we noted remarkable similarities between these Christian saint-soldiers, Freemasons, and the Khalsa ('pure') brotherhood, a martial Sikh order founded by Guru Gobind Singh Ji (1666—1708), the tenth Sikh guru, in 1699 (approximately 80 years prior to the formation of the Masonic Order of the Knights Templar).

BROTHER KNIGHTS: OUR JOURNEY SO FAR...

The Knights Templar and Khalsa orders both merge spiritual devotion with martial duty to safeguard the vulnerable and uphold righteousness. During the inaugural Khalsa ceremony, the guru called upon five dedicated Sikhs to volunteer for baptism with amrit (holy water) stirred in a sarbloh batta (large iron bowl) with a khanda (double-edged broadsword), after which the guru requested the five amritdhari (baptized) devotees to baptize him, echoing the humility demonstrated by Jesus of Nazareth when he sought baptism from John the Baptist. This is all performed in the presence of the Guru Granth Sahib Ji (which is both the Sikh scripture and eternal guru of the Sikhs), while the initiate adopts a kneeling position known as veerasan (warrior pose). This kneeling posture is reminiscent of Freemasons who also kneel while taking their obligations before the Holy Bible. After their initiation, Khalsa Sikhs are bestowed with five articles of faith—kacchera (shorts), kesh (keeping hair unshorn), kangha (comb), kirpan (sword), and kara (iron bracelet)—which parallels the tradition of a Master Mason receiving an apron during his Raising ceremony. Furthermore, initiated Sikhs are honoured with the title ‘bhai’ (brother), akin to the designation conferred upon Freemasons after their initiation. There is in fact another traditional Sikh order known as the Sevapanthi (‘selfless service path’), founded in the 17th century, which is akin to the Knights Hospitallers (a.k.a. Knights of Malta); they both managed hospitals and cared the sick and needy without discrimination.

A day following our Installation, I attended a Craft meeting in Marlow as a guest, where I surprisingly encountered Nick Wilson again! During the Festive Board, he described the Provincial Prior’s Bodyguards and encouraged me to connect with the Bodyguard Commander, Kt. Mark Harry, which I did the very next morning. After the meeting, Ranj and I were thankfully established as probational members of the Knights Templar Bodyguards, visiting preceptories throughout the Province of Buckinghamshire, Berkshire, and Oxfordshire, having the honour of forming the Arch of Steel, guarding the Sepulchre, heralding, standard bearing and banner bearing! We are both privileged to be part of such an esteemed band of brother knights, under the very capable leadership of Kt. Mark Harry. These meetings provided us the opportunity to meet and engage with numerous other brother knights, including the distinguished Eminent Preceptor Dean White, E.Kt. Martin Sando, E.Kt. David Parry, E.Kt. Bruce Hartrup, E.Kt. Douglas Leacy and countless others whose names I cannot fully enumerate without completely transforming this newsletter into a names list! Each one of these brother knights truly excel in ritual, leadership, and brotherly love.

BROTHER KNIGHTS: OUR JOURNEY SO FAR...

Continued...

While Ranj brought me into Freemasonry, it was in fact I who sparked his interest in exploring the various orders beyond the Craft. We were very fortunate that our Exaltation into the Royal Arch, Installation into Knights Templar, and Perfection into Rose Croix were each a double ceremony!

We are now both eagerly anticipating the Malta Meeting scheduled for Thursday 29th May at the Beaconsfield Masonic Centre!
